City Is in Gala Attire, and Citizens Are Keeping Open House.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Alexandria, Va., February 22.—Alexandria is ready for to-morrow's big civic and military parade, which will start promptly at 2:30 o'clock. The parade will be reviewed by President Wilson, Vice-President Thomas R. Marshall. Secretary of War Garrison, Governor Henry C. Stuart, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Rooseveit, Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the President; Dr. Cary Grayson, United States Navy, physician to the president, and a host of others, including the members of the President's family. These distinguished guests will review the parade from the grandstand at Washington and Oronoco Streets, which has been inclosed in glass and is decorated in the President's colors.

The booming of twenty-one guns from the United States ship Sylvia will announce to Alexandria and her thousands of visitors the arrival of the President. The President and members of his party will be driven immediately to the reviewing stand.

The parade will be nearly two miles long, and there will be about 5,000 men in line of march and sixteen bands of music. The procession will be headed by the United States Marine Band.

Alexandria is in holiday dress for the festivities.

City Keeps Opes House.

City Keeps Open House.

Many Alexandrians will keep open house to-morrow, and thousands of visitors from Washington and other points are expected to come here to witness the big pageant.

The Richmond Light Infantry Blues, in command of Major E. W. Bowles, will arrive here shortly before noon. They will act as escort to the Governor of Virginia.

The parade will be headed by a platoon of police, and will be marshaled by Colonel Henry T. Allen, United States Army, with Julian Y.

Many Alexandrians will keep open for eviewing stand.

Members of the George Washington Birthday Association will, at 9:30 o'clock to-morrow morning, go to Mount Vernon and place a memorial wreath on Washingtons' tomb. Immediately upon their return the officers of the association will look after the visiting guests.

The city has been cleaning the snow from its streets. Despite the fact that to-day was Sunday, a force of city employes worked all day removing snow from many of the streets over which the parade will pass.
